Date: 12 March 2019

Venue: Room No. 108, Central Block

Time: 11am-12pm

Speaker: Dr. Charmaine O'Brien, Head of Programs at The Helmsman Project Ltd.

Topic of the session: Workshop on Culinary narrative: Exploring India

Detailed Description: Dr. O'Brien started her presentation with her experience as a writer and how she went about exploring and analyzing Indian food with a brief description of her books on food in India. She also dwelled on the fact that there is more to food than just recipes as factors like psychology and geography plays a big part in knowing more about food. She talked about exploring the realm of fiction, bringing food into stories and how difficult it is exploring it when all her works were non-fiction and how writing short stories are helping her to finish her novel. The session concluded after Dr. O'Brien read out her short story and the ensuing questions from the students were answered.

Impact/Importance of the session: The topic selection was insightful and the speaker brought us to confront the question, how well do we know about the foods of our culture? Moreover, the session was inspirational when Dr. O'Brien from Australia has done a vast research into the various dishes in India from various cultures, knows more about them than we do, which has struck the cord with the students.
