POLICY HACKATHON: SAFE STREETS PROTOCOL FOR WOMEN

11 & 12 August 2026 | Bangalore Central Campus

About CHRIST (Deemed to be University), Bangalore

The CHRIST (Deemed to be University) was born out of the educational vision of St. Kuriakose Elias Chavara, an educationist and social reformer of the nineteenth century in South India. He founded the first Catholic indigenous congregation, Carmelites of Mary Immaculate (CMI), in 1831 which administers CHRIST (Deemed to be University). CHRIST (Deemed to be University) was established as 'Christ College' in 1969. It undertook path-breaking initiatives in Indian higher education with the introduction of innovative and modern curricula, insistence on academic discipline, imparting of holistic education and adoption of global higher education practices with the support of creative and dedicated staff. The multidisciplinary university which focuses on teaching research and service offers Bachelors, Masters, and Doctoral programmes in humanities, social sciences, sciences, commerce, management, engineering, architecture, education, and law to about 25,000 students. CHRIST (Deemed to be University) has seven campuses, four centred in Bangalore (Bangalore Central Campus, Bangalore Bannerghatta Campus, Bangalore Kengeri Campus, and Bangalore Yeshwanthpur Campus), Delhi NRC Off-campus and Pune Lavasa Off Campus. The central campus is a living example of harmonious multiculturalism with students from all the states and union territories and around 60 different countries. CHRIST (Deemed to be University) publishes six peer-reviewed research journals and has published more than 300 books in Kannada and English. A promoter of sports, music, and literary activities, it is a nurturing ground for creative excellence.

About School of Law

School of Law, CHRIST (Deemed to be University), through its five-year law Program, has carved a space for itself in the top league of premier law schools in India. The school molds its students through a combination of exposure to the advanced syllabus, clinical legal education programs, and faculty monitored participation in curricular and extra-curricular activities.

The syllabus for the five-year program goes far beyond the basic requirements of the Bar Council of India reflecting the current trends and demands of academia and the industry. Besides having a league of highly qualified faculty, the educational process is supported by a library equipped with a rich depository of online and offline resources. The School of Law will strive to work with an untiring commitment to the cause of rule of law and promotion of excellence in the realm of legal education in India.

About the Gender Studies Committee

CHRIST (Deemed to be University) has always supported holistic education and development, and the education of students on issues surrounding gender is an intrinsic part of such development. At the Gender Studies Committee, School of Law, CHRIST (Deemed to be University), Bangalore, we endeavour to create a space for students to unlearn indoctrinated ideas, engage in thoughtful discussions on gender identity, feminism and queer theory, and deliberate on issues that are at the intersection between “the private” and “the public”.

Over the past few years, the Gender Studies Committee has been at the forefront of research, outreach, and advocacy. We have taken meaningful strides in framing policies, reviewing legislation, and collaborating with national and state-level interdisciplinary departments, ministries and commissions. Alongside this, we are committed to encouraging thoughtful conversations among the student body through the conduct of events, including academic reading circles, guest lectures, certificate courses, and open forums. At the heart of this effort lies ‘FLUID’, the student-led annual newsletter, dedicated to exploring one’s openness, adaptability and willingness to break down traditional binaries, and discovering the complexities and nuances of gender.

Background Guide

Accessibility to public areas faces a persistent danger, and it goes beyond physical exposure, as it instils the notion that women's bodies are vulnerable to observation, regulation, and unwelcome interference. When poor urban planning fails to address the problems women face due to the lack of an intersectional approach to urban infrastructure, it becomes necessary to discuss the solutions. Participants are required to draft a comprehensive policy, recognising that experiences of safety are not uniform and should account for the lived realities of diverse groups.

The proposed protocol should address both preventive and responsive measures. This can include, among other things, urban planning and infrastructure, public transport safety, street lighting, surveillance and privacy safeguards, emergency response mechanisms, community engagement, reporting and grievance redressal mechanisms, accountability of public authorities, digital safety, and public awareness initiatives. Participants can do this by analysing the existing legal and policy landscape, including constitutional principles, municipal regulations, judicial precedents, and relevant national and international best practices, and by drawing upon empirical research, policy reports, case studies, and stakeholder consultations to support their recommendations.

When divided into the specific stakeholder groups, they are collectively expected to approach the drafting exercise from the perspective of the stakeholder it represents while remaining mindful of the broader objective of creating an effective and executable protocol. The participant groups should identify the interests, responsibilities, and constraints of their allotted stakeholder, practical recommendations which the stakeholder would advocate for, and areas where collaboration with other stakeholders would be necessary.

Effective public policy is the result of negotiation and collaboration. The final protocol should reflect a balanced approach that is feasible, practical and legally sound to respond to the needs of all women.
