Environment and Sustainability

Engaging the community in fostering environmental stewardship, our initiative has been actively involved in promoting a sense of responsibility towards our surroundings over the last three months. Through a series of educational sessions, clean-up drives, collaborative beautification projects, and engaging events, we aim to inspire sustainable practices and raise awareness about the importance of a clean and healthy environment.

Education & Skill Development

Through various initiatives such as Activity Centre Teaching Sessions, Career Guidance and Educational Fairs, Skill Development Programs, and Digital Awareness and Literacy.

It aims to empower individuals in adopted project areas, focusing on children's education and skill development for dropouts. By engaging volunteers in daily teaching sessions and events, the cohort fosters a culture of lifelong learning and career readiness, emphasising both soft and technical skills essential for job acquisition and career success.

Media and Advocacy

The Media and Communication cohort of the CSA (Centre for Social Action) is a dynamic team responsible for various aspects of communication and visual representation within the organization. With a focus on report writing, photography, and poster designing for events, this cohort plays a pivotal role in ensuring effective communication and promotion of CSA's activities. It helps to foster connections, raise awareness, and inspire action within the community.

The cohort is divided into different groups such as report, posters, photography and social media. The report team summarizes event outcomes, detailing community impact, or conveying organizational updates. From community service projects to fundraising activities, the photography team adeptly showcases the vibrancy and diversity of CSA's involvement, creating visual narratives that resonate with audiences and help to enhance the organization's visibility. The poster team is responsible for creating eye-catching posters for events.

Clean-up Drives

"Cleaning and organising is a practice, not a project." - Meagan Francis

The Environment Cohort of the Centre for Social Action embodies this saying through their clean-up drives. CHRIST (Deemed to be University), Lavasa Pune campus, is indeed a blessed campus, surrounded by lush greenery and nature. The clean-up drives organized by this cohort not only clean the campus and neighbouring areas but also beautify it. These clean-up drives are conducted frequently, with the aim of beautifying and cleaning up the area.

These drives work towards one purpose: the betterment of the environment.

Moreover, these clean-up drives serve as a catalyst for broader environmental awareness and advocacy. They provide opportunities for education and engagement, empowering participants to understand the importance of environmental conservation and inspiring them to take proactive steps towards sustainability in their own lives.

Ultimately, the overarching goal of these initiatives is clear: to create a cleaner, healthier, and more vibrant environment for all. By coming together to beautify and protect their campus and surrounding areas, the Environment Cohort sets a powerful example of collective action in pursuit of a common cause—the betterment of the environment for current and future generations.

Girl Child Day'24

CSA recently celebrated 'Girl Child Day,' honouring the dreams and aspirations of every girl. The gathering was a reminder that every girl child is born with a purpose. It was not just an event but a celebration of change and equality.

Sakhee

"The self-help group at the university aims to empower staff members to take control of their financial futures by encouraging them to save a specific amount of money each month. Through participating in this initiative, staff members learn the importance of saving and how it can positively impact their lives in the long run. The group provides support, resources, and guidance to help members develop healthy saving habits and achieve their financial goals.

Additionally, the self-help group is part of the Centre for Social Action in the Social Entrepreneurship cohort. It operates within a larger framework of social responsibility and entrepreneurship. This affiliation allows the group to access additional resources, networks, and opportunities for collaboration with other like-minded initiatives. By integrating social entrepreneurship principles into their saving practices, members not only benefit individually but also contribute to the broader goal of creating positive social change within the university community.

Project Bridge

A program aimed at providing free education to all, one that operates on CHRIST (Deemed to be University)'s core values and is a flagship initiative for the Education and Skill Development cohort. Project Bridge aims to share knowledge, skills, and love with children who visit the campus from nearby villages and towns. The program offers basic education in subjects such as English, Mathematics, Science, and IT to children ranging from 3rd to 10th grade.

Through a series of training and workshop programs, the initiative not only teaches subjects but also hones their soft and hard skills. The consistency and dedication shown by the volunteers involved in this program are phenomenal. The motive behind this beautiful initiative is to give these children the tools they need to paint their own futures.

Pradhan

Pradhan is a donation campaign organized by students and teachers at the university, aimed at collecting donations from the community. Every month, a donation drive is conducted where students and teachers contribute clothes, blankets, footwear, stationery, and other essential items. These donations are then distributed to nearby villages and schools, benefiting those in need.

The initiative not only helps those in need but also fosters a sense of empathy, compassion, and social responsibility among the participants.

By actively engaging in philanthropic activities, students and teachers contribute to creating a more inclusive and compassionate society while also strengthening community bonds.

In addition to material donations, Pradhan also collaborates with NCC members to organize blood donation drives. This collaboration ensures a wider reach and greater impact, as both material and blood donations are vital for the well-being of the community.

Clear writing is only achievable through clear thinking, which is only achievable by decluttering the mind.
