Summary of the Activity	Day 1 forenoon session covered the roles and responsibilities of master trainers; constructive alignment, CO-PO mapping rationale, Changes in assessment strategies, essentials of course plan, class observation protocols and student orientation for LCA. Participants raised relevant doubts. The session helped to bring clarity on what is an LCA course and the essentials of a course plan - both very much necessary. Afternoon session was on authentic assessments and types of assessments based on the predominant andragogies in use. Each department discussed the types of assessments they use and the challenges they face. The discussion helped in reflecting the various kinds of assessments that can be used to measure the outcomes at the appropriate RBTL level. Important Questions emerged: 1. How will you define an LCA 2. Which courses can be considered an LCA 3. How do we give the rating for CO-PO alignment 4. Action verbs in COs 5. CO-CIA mapping 6. New assessment submission pattern 7. Rubrics 8. Challenges in group assignments Day 2 session 1 was on Scholarship of Teaching Learning (SoTL) where faculty gained clarity on what, why and how of SoTL It was followed by a workshop where faculty in department level clusters reviewed an existing course plan based on the checklist prepared by TLEC and during the post lunch session each team presented their insights. Points for follow up a) Clarity on the types of courses b) Reading lists to be made mandatory (often left blank in Espro) c) Office hours - be specific d) CO is upto RBTL3 but CIA III is measuring RBTL4 (Machine Learning) e) Necessary changes in Course description f) Law: CO missing/Course anchor meetings missing/ classroom policies missing (Faculty are currently downloading from Espro-/ need more clarity with CO-CIA Mapping g) English for Sciences and English for Professional Studies : CO with overlapping RBTL h) Use of active learning strategies

Tangible Outcomes	Day 1: (a) Master trainers gained clarity on course plan design, assessments and constructive alignment- Participants could clarify their doubts (b) Master trainers have prepared a schedule for department level training Day 2: (a) Clarity on designing a SOTL project (b) Each department reviewed an LCA course plan based on the checklist shared by TLEC - identified misalignment and made plans for course plans for next semester
Follow-up plan	a) Necessary support to master trainers and campus coordinator in designing and facilitating department level sessions on assessments b) Need based one to one assistance to develop SoTL projects
